Apple iPhone Used To Record Hit Indie Single

By Clive Young

Ask anyone with an Apple iPhone what he thinks of it, and odds are you'll hear a rave about how it can do most anything. As if to underline the point, indie band The 88 recently created its latest single, "Love is the Thing," on the ubiquitous device, using FourTrack, a recording app by Sonoma Wire Works. Perhaps unsurprisingly, the song is now for sale on iTunes, where it's the top-selling song of the band's online oeuvre; what is surprising, however, is just how good the quirky chamber pop song sounds when you consider its origins. ## Quote of the Week

"The guys are so witty and quick that if I have to go out because something got unplugged, they turn that into a joke. If they were to finish a song, go into a talking bit and the delay throw was still up, then they'd play off that. It's not like you want mistakes, but sometimes happy accidents happen. Plus they've gotten in the habit of getting a photo with the crowd behind them each night, so I have to run out and do that. There's never a dull moment" - Matt Shane, monitor engineer, Flight of the Conchords »
